Why One Table

September 16–17, 2026

Global Medical Response Office of Emergency Management · Lewisville, Texas · DFW

Why One Table

The problems reshaping resilience don't respect sector lines. For two years, "one table" has described how VisionCast works: no keynote stage, no breakout rooms, no expo hall, everyone in one room. This year we make the case for why. The risks now defining private-sector resilience cross every line at once, and each is enormous precisely because it cannot be solved from a single seat.

What Is On the Table

- People out of harm's way. Employees stranded when conflict abroad disrupts operations.
- Locked out by the climate. Heat, flooding, or smoke makes the workplace unreachable.
- Seeing around the corner. Climate, geopolitics, supply chain, and cyber compounding at once.
- Building the PSEMA Training Program. A working session shaping what PSEMA delivers year-round.
- What the research is telling us. Pressure-tested against the practitioners who live the risk.

What to Expect

- One room, 40 seats, both days
- Chatham House Rules, so people can say what actually happened
- A working emergency operations facility as the venue, not a hotel ballroom
- Whiteboards and working sessions — no keynote stage, no expo hall, no vendor pitches

Who Is At the Table

- Corporate continuity, security, and risk leaders from national and Fortune 500 organizations
- Emergency management directors, and the government and nonprofit partners who coordinate with them
- Supply chain, logistics, and critical infrastructure leaders

If you are the person your organization calls at four in the morning, this is your room.
